I am writing about the very confusing situation at Downing Square. Cars going north on Park Ave will sometimes stop when they don't need to and cars on the other roads will often pull out in front of cars going north at Park Ave. A few suggestions to improve the situation: -> Add a Stop sign on Park Ave north and label every Stop sign at that intersection as "All Way" -> Put a sign at Park Ave north saying "Do not stop", signs on Lowell and Westminster heading east saying "Traffic from right does not stop", and signs on Lowell and Bow heading west saying "Traffic from left does not stop". -> Ideal, but expensive: Put a traffic light which is always green for Park Ave/Park Ave Extension both ways and red everywhere else, except when a car actually came up to the intersection. In terms of timing, the green lights for Westminster, Bow, and Lowell heading west could be short, with the one for Lowell heading east being a bit longer.
